

Filco Carting's CEO named Notable Leader in Sustainability by Crain's Magazine

The list features professionals from various industries within the New York City metropolitan area

April 18, 2023 (New York, N.Y.)—Leading New York City waste management and recycling firm Filco Carting's CEO, Domenic Monopoli, has been named a Notable Leader in Sustainability by Crain's New York Business Magazine. The list published by Crain's Magazine is comprised of 50 individuals from various industries within the New York City metropolitan area. With Monopoli being named a 'Notable Leader in Sustainability', this places Filco Carting as the only private carting company featured on this list.

"I am extremely honored and proud to be recognized as one of the fifty individuals pushing sustainability," Monopoli said. "Filco Carting is continuing to promote these sustainability practices to help create a cleaner New York City and safer world".

Filco Carting and Sustainability

As a 'Notable Leader in Sustainability', Monopoli plays an integral role in the development and innovation behind Filco's sustainability and recycling practices as Chief Executive Officer. Currently, he is responsible for the creation of programs that are designed to help educate team members, communities, and Filco customers on the importance of sustainability. Additionally, he is the leading force behind implementing the company's vision as a fourth-generation family-owned business.

Monopoli's Achievements as CEO

While developing sustainability practices at Filco Carting, Monopoli has also focused on highlighting the importance of safety standards and industry-leading services. As CEO, giving back to the community is a goal of Monopoli's, as it has been engrained within the foundation and culture of Filco Carting since its inception in 1910. For example, under Monopoli's leadership, Filco Carting fed 350 Brooklyn residents in need during the Covid-19 Pandemic. Additionally, Filco and its team members have been providing turkeys for families during Thanksgiving and gifting toys to children in the community during Christmastime.

The Future of Sustainability in NYC

While Monopoli has grown Filco Carting into becoming one of North America's largest waste and recycling firms, New York City has been developing new ways of keeping the city cleaner with the Commercial Waste Zone RFP process and new trash set-out times to decrease the number of rats on city streets. When the bids for these zones are awarded, Filco Carting will continue to be a trailblazer in sustainability and exceed the standards set by New York City—pushing for a greener and cleaner future.

Exceeding NYC Standards
for Over 100 Years!

##

About Filco Carting Corp.

Founded in 1910, Filco Carting Corp. is the highest rated waste removal and recycling company in New York City, providing sustainable, smart, and safe services throughout all five boroughs. 113 years ago, Filco started as a single horse-drawn cart that collected the waste and has now grown to become the industry leader it is through its best-in-class and technological practices, all striving to create a safer and cleaner New York City.

Exceeding NYC Standards
for Over 100 Years!